

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM TO
THE STATUTORY AUDITORS (AMENDMENT OF COMPANIES ACT 2006 AND DELEGATION OF FUNCTIONS ETC) ORDER 2012

2012 No. 1741

1. This explanatory memorandum has been prepared by the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) and is laid before Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.

This memorandum contains information for the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments.

2. Purpose of the instrument

This instrument amends the Companies Act 2006 (“the Act”), primarily to give the Secretary of State new powers to secure that the relevant accountancy professional bodies discharge their responsibilities as regards the authorisation and supervision of “statutory auditors”. In addition, it replaces the existing delegation of functions of the Secretary of State under the Act concerning auditors with a new delegation in favour of a different body – the Financial Reporting Council Limited. It also appoints that body to carry out other, related, functions, revoking the existing appointments.

3. Matters of special interest to the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments

Since it amends primary legislation, the relevant section of this instrument (Part 2) has been cleared by Parliamentary Counsel.

4. Legislative Context

- 4.1 Part 2 (articles 4 and 5) of the instrument re-implements obligations in Directive 2006/43/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2006 on statutory audits and consolidated accounts, amending Council Directives 78/660/EEC and 83/349/EC and repealing Council Directive 84/253/EEC (“the 2006 Directive”). It also makes provision for matters which arise out of or relate to these obligations.

- 4.2 Article 32 of the 2006 Directive requires Member States to have an “effective system of public oversight” as regards statutory auditors and article 3.2 of the 2006 Directive has the effect that such an auditor’s professional body (the Act uses the term “supervisory body”) must be subject to this oversight too. Oversight includes being able to take “appropriate action” and article 4 of the instrument inserts new provisions at Part 42 of the Act to allow for additional types of “appropriate action” that may be taken against the professional bodies. Currently the type of action is limited – revoking the body’s recognition as a body able to authorise and supervise auditors and asking the court for a “compliance order” (essentially an order that the body comply with its responsibilities as regards the supervision of its auditor members). The new provisions will allow the professional body to be fined and given directions (directions to do or refrain from doing specified things).

- 4.3 The Act provides for statutory audit work to be monitored by means of inspections – see Article 29 of the 2006 Directive (quality assurance systems). A more rigorous system as regards monitoring audits in respect of “public interest entities” (broadly speaking, listed companies) applies – inspections of these entities are carried out by an independent body and not by the auditor’s professional body. The amendments of the Act made by article 5(3) and (4) of this instrument will allow the independent inspecting body to determine sanctions against auditors if it discovers breaches of relevant rules of the auditor’s professional body.
- 4.4 In transposing the 2006 Directive, the Act confers numerous functions on the Secretary of State (including taking “appropriate action”), but the Act also allows these functions to be delegated to a third party. Currently these functions are exercised by the Professional Oversight Board – a so-called “operating body” (or division) of the Financial Reporting Council Limited (“the Council”). The Council is being reformed and restructured and Part 3 of the Order revokes this existing delegation and delegates the relevant functions to the Council.
- 4.5 A revised Transposition Note in respect of the 2006 Directive is attached.
- 4.6 A negative procedure instrument addressing other aspects of the Council’s reform and restructuring will be made after this instrument is laid. It is intended that both instruments will come into effect at the same time

5. Territorial Extent and Application

This instrument extends and applies to all of the United Kingdom.

6. European Convention on Human Rights

The Minister for Employment Relations, Consumer and Postal Affairs, Norman Lamb MP has made the following statement regarding Human Rights:

In my view the provisions of the Statutory Auditors (Amendment of Companies Act 2006 and Delegation of Functions etc) Order 2012 are compatible with the Convention rights.

7. Policy background

- 7.1 In October 2011 the Government and the Council launched a joint consultation outlining proposals to reform the work of the Council to improve its efficiency and effectiveness; rationalise and minimise the regulatory burdens on market participants; and reinforce the Council's independence from those it regulates. Originally, the planned implementation date was April 2012, but July 2012 is now proposed. A number of the changes that have emerged from the consultation require amendments to legislation. The policy gives rise to two types of legislative change: firstly, amendments to the Act in connection with the supervision of the professional bodies etc and, secondly, replacing existing appointments of, and delegations to, the Council's current operating bodies with (in most cases) appointments of, and delegations to, the Council itself.
- 7.2 The amendments to Part 42 of the Act (see paragraph 4.2 above) will ensure that the Council has more proportionate powers in relation to the sanctioning of the professional bodies. Following the existing structure of Part 42 these powers are expressed on the face of the Act to be exercised by the Secretary of State. In fact, however, it will be the Council exercising them because of the relevant delegation under Part 3 of the instrument. Note that in practice it is also the Council which carries out the independent inspections of audits in respect of "public interest entities" (see paragraph 4.3 above). It will therefore be the Council which is determining sanctions against auditors where, pursuant to an investigation, it discovers breaches of the relevant rules of the auditor's professional body.
- 7.3 Pursuant to paragraphs 16(1) and 24(1) of Schedule 10 to the Act, the professional bodies are required to facilitate that misconduct allegations in respect of their auditor members arising in significant audits are investigated by an independent body. In practice this independent body is again the Council. The legislation is worded so as to preclude disciplinary measures being imposed in such cases unless a formal oral hearing is first of all held. The consultation recognised that the holding of a hearing was not always necessary – to make it a requirement in every case was burdensome. A further amendment to the Act (article 5(5) of the instrument) will allow the professional bodies to enter into misconduct allegation arrangements which permit an auditor to waive this hearing requirement.
- 7.4 A main feature of the reforms is the restructuring of the Council to create a more streamlined organisation. The Council's existing seven operating bodies will be dissolved and two new Committees of the Council created. As a consequence, many of the functions now exercised by an operating body will need to be transferred to the Council. Parts 3, 4 and 5 of the instrument achieve this.

8. Consultation outcome

The consultation on FRC reform was launched in October 2011 and closed on 10 January 2012. A total of 75 responses were received. The main concerns raised were to do with ensuring the quality of accounting standards (granted that the relevant operating body, the Accounting Standards Board, is being dissolved) and the continued international influence of these standards; maintaining appropriate governance arrangements; maintaining appropriate procedures and sanctions in relation to conduct; and defining the respective roles of the Council and the professional bodies. In their joint response to the consultation (www.bis.gov.uk/Consultations), the Government and the Council have explained that the Council will maintain a strong contribution to EU and international policy-making; that the Council will enhance the role of the new Committees to address concerns as regards the setting of accounting standards; and that the Council will be publishing additional detail about the operation of the new sanctioning regime.

9. Guidance

None

10. Impact

10.1 Waiving hearings in disciplinary cases will have a positive financial impact upon the accountancy sector. Otherwise, there is no impact on business, charities or voluntary bodies.

10.2 The changes impact upon the Council and the professional accountancy bodies. The public sector is affected in so far as the Council and such bodies are carrying out public functions. There is otherwise no public sector impact. Note that since most functions and powers will now be exercised by the Council itself and not its operating bodies, the Council will be directly accountable to Parliament. It will also be subject to freedom of information.

10.3 An Impact Assessment is attached to this memorandum and will be published alongside this Explanatory Memorandum on www.legislation.gov.uk

11. Regulating small business

This is not relevant.

12. Monitoring & review

The Council will monitor the implementation of the changes, particularly to see if they contribute to the efficiency of the capital markets. Additionally, the Council will conduct an in-depth review in 2015.
