

THE BURUNDI (SANCTIONS) REGULATIONS 2021
REPORT UNDER SECTION 18 OF THE SANCTIONS AND ANTI-MONEY
LAUNDERING ACT 2018 IN RELATION TO CRIMINAL OFFENCES

A: INTRODUCTION

1. This is a report under section 18 of the Sanctions and Anti Money Laundering Act 2018 (“the Sanctions Act”) in relation to the Burundi (Sanctions) Regulations 2021 (“the Regulations”).
2. Section 18(2) of the Act requires a report to be laid before Parliament where regulations made under section 1 of the Act create offences for the purposes of enforcing any prohibitions or requirements imposed by those regulations, or for the purposes of preventing the circumvention of those prohibitions or requirements.
3. In accordance with section 18, this report: sets out the offences created by the Regulations (see Part B); explains why there are good reasons for the relevant prohibitions or requirements in the Regulations to be enforceable by criminal proceedings (Part C); and sets out the maximum terms of imprisonment that apply to those offences and why there are good reasons for those maximum terms (Part D).

B: THE OFFENCES

4. The principal prohibitions and requirements in the Regulations are aimed at encouraging the Government of Burundi to –
  - (a) respect democratic principles and institutions, the rule of law and good governance in Burundi;
  - (b) refrain from policies or activities which repress civil society in Burundi;
  - (c) comply with international human rights law and to respect human rights, including in particular, to respect—
    - (i) the right to life of persons in Burundi;
    - (ii) the right of persons not to be subjected to torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment in Burundi, including in the context of rape, other forms of sexual violence and gender based violence;
    - (iii) the right to liberty and security of persons in Burundi, including freedom from arbitrary arrest, detention or enforced disappearance;
    - (iv) the rights of journalists, human rights defenders and other persons in Burundi, to freedom of expression and peaceful assembly.
5. The Regulations confer a power on the Secretary of State to designate persons where the Secretary of State has reasonable grounds to suspect that that person is an ‘involved person’, and considers that the designation of that person is appropriate, having regard to the purposes stated in regulation 4, and the likely significant effects of the designation on that person. In these Regulations, an ‘involved person’ means a person who:

- (a) is or has been involved in—
    - (i) the commission of a serious human rights violation or abuse in Burundi;
    - (ii) the repression of civil society and democratic opposition in Burundi;
    - (iii) actions, policies or activities which undermine democracy, the rule of law or good governance in Burundi;
  - (b) is owned or controlled directly or indirectly (within the meaning of regulation 7) by a person who is or has been so involved,
  - (c) is acting on behalf of or at the direction of a person who is or has been so involved, or
  - (d) is a member of, or associated with, a person who is or has been so involved.
6. The Regulations then provide a number of prohibitions in relation to designated persons (including, no person is to deal with the assets of the person or provide funds or other economic resources to them or for their benefit). These prohibitions contained in the Regulations are intended to replace with the same effect the prohibitions in the Burundi (Sanctions) (EU Exit) Regulations 2019 (S.I. 2019/136) (“the 2019 Regulations”), which are revoked by the Regulations.
7. The offences created by the Regulations fall into the following categories:
- a. contravening the principal prohibitions in the Regulations (e.g. breaching an asset-freeze) or trying to circumvent those principal prohibitions;
  - b. knowingly or recklessly providing false information for the purpose of obtaining a licence;
  - c. breaching the terms of a licence;
  - d. failing to comply with requirements relating to the providing and recording of information; and
  - e. disclosing confidential information in certain cases where the designation power has been used.
8. Details of each of the offences created by these Regulations, the prohibitions and requirements to which those offences relate, and the maximum penalties relating to each offence, are set out:

- a. in relation to financial sanctions, in the table in Annex A to this report;
- b. in relation to the disclosure of confidential information where the designation power has been used, in the table in Annex B to this report.

C: REASONS FOR CREATING THE OFFENCES

9. In order to fulfil the stated purpose of this sanctions regime, the prohibitions and requirements in these Regulations need to be properly enforced.
10. There are several mechanisms through which these measures can be enforced without criminal proceedings. These include the imposition of monetary penalties for breaching financial sanctions.
11. Having the ability to take enforcement action through criminal proceedings, alongside these other enforcement measures, is appropriate for several reasons. The offences act as a deterrent in relation to the commission of serious acts and omissions which would undermine the purposes of the regime. They also allow the UK government to take a proportionate response where severity of the act or omission warrants it.
12. Importantly, the offences created by the Regulations are consistent with the offences contained in the legislation which the Regulations will replace i.e. the 2019 Regulations. Failing to create offences would mean that there would be an enforcement gap between existing legislation (other than the 2019 Regulations) and the Regulations. Special care has been taken to ensure that offences are consistent with existing offences while not duplicating any offences that already exist in legislation other than the 2019 Regulations.
13. These issues are addressed in more detail below in relation to the different types of offences in the Regulations.

Breaches of, and circumvention of, the principal financial prohibitions

14. The prohibitions contained in regulations 11 to 15 prohibit persons from dealing with funds or economic resources owned, held or controlled by a designated person and from making funds or economic resources available (directly or indirectly) to or for the benefit of a designated person where the person doing so knows or has reasonable cause to suspect that this is the case. Regulation 16 prohibits intentional conduct whose known object or effect is to circumvent any of those prohibitions or to facilitate their circumvention.
15. A breach of these prohibitions is a serious matter because such actions undermine the purpose of the sanctions regime. In this case, breaches could result in the flow of funds to those, for example, who are engaged in, or support, serious human rights violations and abuses in Burundi, or who are engaged in the repression of civil society and democratic opposition in Burundi and any action, policies or activities which undermine democracy, the rule of law or good governance in Burundi.

16. The ability to institute criminal proceedings in relation to these matters serves as an effective deterrent. It also enables the government to take a proportionate response which corresponds to the severity of the breach.
17. The ability to institute criminal proceedings sits alongside other enforcement measures relating to financial sanctions. In particular, the Office of Financial Sanctions Implementation has the power to impose civil monetary penalties under Part 8 of the Policing and Crime Act 2017 to enforce breaches of the financial sanctions prohibitions<sup>1</sup> in the Regulations. Enabling these prohibitions to be enforceable by criminal proceedings alongside these other enforcement measures ensures that a range of enforcement options is available to enforcement bodies, enabling them to take action that is proportionate to the breach in question.
18. The Regulations are consistent with, but will not duplicate, existing financial sanctions offences included in sanctions regulations made under the Sanctions Act. In particular, the financial sanctions offences in the Regulations will replace financial sanctions offences and penalties that were created by the 2019 Regulations. This will ensure that there is no gap in the UK government's ability to enforce financial sanctions relating to Burundi.

Breaches of prohibitions and requirements relating to licensing

19. The Treasury licensing offences are intended to ensure that people do not obtain licences based on false information or documents and also that any licence conditions are complied with. The creation of criminal offences will help ensure robust compliance with the Regulations. The system of licensing cannot effectively operate without a strong disincentive to breaching the terms of a licence or making misleading applications.
20. The licensing offences are consistent with those currently applicable under the existing Burundi sanctions regime.

Breaches of requirements relating to information

21. The Regulations require:
  - a. banks and other relevant firms, businesses and professions to report relevant information to the Treasury in relation to financial sanctions;

- b. designated persons to provide, where requested, information concerning their assets to the Treasury.
22. Enabling requirements to be enforceable by criminal proceedings ensures greater compliance with the Regulations. The Treasury relies on (a) reporting by relevant firms and (b) the ability to request information from designated persons to assess compliance with the Regulations, and is better able to target its compliance efforts according to the information received.

Breaches of the confidential information prohibitions

23. Regulation 9 contains provisions relating to the treatment of information relating to the statement of reasons for a person's designation and states that in certain circumstances the Secretary of State may specify that any of that information should be treated as confidential.
24. A breach of the prohibition on the disclosure of confidential information is a serious matter because disclosing information supporting the reasons why a person has been designated, that is not already available to the public from other sources, could undermine national security or damage international relations or could impede the prevention or detection of serious crime in the UK or elsewhere.
25. The ability to institute criminal proceedings in relation to these matters serves as an effective deterrent. It also enables the UK government to take a proportionate response which corresponds to the severity of any breach.

D: REASONS FOR MAXIMUM PENALTIES

26. The penalties imposed by the Regulations are set out in Annexes A and B. In all cases the penalties are either consistent with penalties relating to offences in the 2019 Regulations that will be replaced by the Regulations. Further detail on the maximum sentences relating to the different categories of offence are set out below.

Breaches of, and circumvention of, the principal financial prohibitions

27. In relation to financial sanctions, the government committed in the White Paper consultation on sanctions<sup>2</sup> to ensure consistency of offences and penalties for financial sanctions contained across domestic legislation. In accordance with that commitment, the Regulations provide for penalties consistent with those provided for in the Policing and Crime Act 2017<sup>3</sup>. The maximum sentence on indictment for financial sanctions was increased by that Act from two years to seven years and there is no good reason for the UK government to revisit the level of penalties. The UK government considers the maximum penalty provides an effective deterrent and is proportionate compared to other serious crime penalties.

Licensing and information offences

28. The Regulations provide that the maximum term of imprisonment for financial sanctions licensing offences is seven years' imprisonment. Due to the scope for circumventing sanctions through improper use of a financial sanctions licence, the Secretary of State considers there are good reasons for the maximum term of imprisonment provided for licensing offences under the Regulations to be set at the same level as for breaches of the principal financial prohibitions.

29. The Regulations provide that the maximum term of imprisonment for financial sanctions information offences is six months. The level of harm associated with a failure to provide information, that is not related to another form of breach, is not deemed sufficiently high to warrant a higher maximum sentence.

30. The Regulations provide that the maximum term of imprisonment for the offence of disclosure of confidential information is two years, which is in line with the 2019 Regulations.

E: CONCLUSIONS

31. As set out in this report:

- a. There are good reasons for each of the prohibitions and requirements set out in the Regulations to be enforceable by criminal proceedings. The ability to enforce these measures by criminal proceedings is an effective deterrent, it is consistent with existing legislation and, in conjunction with the use of other enforcement measures, it enables the government to take a proportionate response to potentially serious acts and omissions which would undermine the purpose of the sanctions regime. Importantly, these Regulations do not create criminal offences where it has been judged that there already exists a criminal offence that can effectively enforce the prohibitions or requirements in question.

- b. There are also good reasons for the maximum terms of imprisonment that attach to those offences: the maximum penalties are consistent with penalties relating to similar offences in other existing legislation; they are an effective deterrent; and they are proportionate to the seriousness of the types of offences to which they relate.
